SUMMER
2026

Sandra Jordan For the past 20 years, Sandra Jordan's Andes-woven Prema Alpaca fabrics have been coveted for their soft sophistication and sumptuous colors. In her new book, Loving Alpaca, Jordan shares how her Peruvian heritage and namesake company—which features her new plaids, left—have turned her passion for preserving culture and supporting herders and weavers into a legacy. Her story and textiles spill onto the page and into the home. Oh, and the book is best enjoyed when cozily wrapped in one of her throws. sandrajordan.com and pointedleafpress.com

Trina Turk + Santa Barbara Designs

Floppy beach hats are one way to keep summer's rays at bay. For poolside protection with a splash of style, Santa Barbara Designs put a runway-worthy spin on its world-renowned umbrellas, partnering with fashion icon Trina Turk. The Capsule collection melds exquisite craftsmanship with the sun-soaked color schemes of Turk and the vibrant textile line from F. Schumacher & Co. santabarbaradesigns.com

Star Tile Architect Andrea Keller and designer Mikayla Mitchell have proved that it's tile's time to shine as the founders of Star Tile. Their multidimensional designs are handmade-to-order by artisans in Joshua Tree, California, with mesmerizing glazes that accentuate their geometry and connection to nature's forms. Whether looking to their "Crystallize" design in the Yemanja glaze, above right, or "Branching" in Blue Sky, right, each piece is unique and reconfigurable into different wall patterns. star-tile.com
